

Hui Liu, M.S. is an Assistant Instructor at Department of Computer Science and Cybersecurity, University of Central Missouri. She is also a Ph.D. candidate in University of Kansas Medical Center. She received her B.S. and M.S. degrees at Xidian University in 2008 and 2011, respectively. She developed multiple clinical software and published more than ten journal papers. She was awarded as Best in Physics in 2019 AAPM (American Association of Physicist in Medicine) annual meeting. Her current research interests include machine learning and deep learning, medical image analysis and full stack software development.